NAME THREE INCIDENTS

Arabic Disaster, Sinking of Steamer
Ruel and Destruction of British Submarine Included for Investigation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 5.—The sinking of the Arabic, the destruction of a British submarine by a German, the sinking of the Ruel, and the destruction of a British submarine by a German, are the three incidents named by the British foreign secretary, suggesting for consideration before an impartial tribunal for investigation together with the case of the Baralong.

The foreign secretary notes in his reply to Ambassador Page's communication of a memorandum from the German government, complaining of circumstances alleged to have attended the destruction of a German submarine by the British auxiliary cruiser Ruel, that the three incidents in question occurred within forty-eight hours of the time the Baralong sank the submarine.

Surprised at German Stand.
The British foreign secretary wrote the German secretary in his reply, "with great satisfaction, although some surprise, the anxiety expressed by the German government that the principles of civilized warfare should be vindicated. It is true that the incident which suddenly reminded Germany that such principles exist, is one in which the alleged principals are British and not German, but his majesty's government does not for a moment suppose that it is the intention to restrict unduly the scope of any judicial investigation which it is thought proper to institute."

"It is evident that to single out the case of the Baralong for particular examination would be the height of absurdity. Even were the allegations made by the German government in regard to the three incidents, which seem to have been deliberately committed by German officers, both on land and sea, against combatants and non-combatants."

Indicates Three Incidents.
His majesty's government, is prepared for the present to confine any judicial investigation to charges made by the German government against the Ruel and the three incidents, which seem to have been deliberately committed by German officers, both on land and sea, against combatants and non-combatants."

The reply then mentions the three incidents already noted. In the case of the Arabic, it is alleged that the crew of the submarine first shot at the crew of the steamer in their boats, killing one man and wounding eight others.

GREEK SHIP STILL AFLOAT BUT SENDS URGENT HELP CALLS

Boiler Room and Bunkers of Thessaloniki Flooded.—Steamer United States Makes Futile
Search.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Jan. 5.—The Greek steamer Thessaloniki was still afloat early today sending urgent calls for help. A wireless message received by the Scandinavian-American line from Thessaloniki, Greece, of the steamship United States brought this information, and also denied a belief that the crippled liner had been entirely abandoned and that the captain and crew had been picked up by the United States. Captain Goetsche's message said:

"We have searched with full speed all night over vast areas around the by positions, clearly marked, without results. Yet at seven this morning I will continue the search. Doing my best. The captain of the Thessaloniki sends urgent messages claiming his engine, boiler room and bunkers are flooded with only little provisions left."

The five positions spoken of in this message are those given by the Thessaloniki in various wireless messages which she has sent since she was cast adrift by the breaking of the towline by which the tugboat Patris was trying to tow her to port.

Federal Trade Commission Will Undertake Task Instead of Department of Justice.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 5.—Investigation of the rise in the price of gasoline will be left to the federal trade commission and not undertaken at the present time by the department of justice. Officials pointed out today that the department of justice has no power to examine witnesses under oath unless it has brought suit.

The trade commission has such power and already an investigation is under way. If the commission develops violations of law, the prosecution will be undertaken by the department of justice.

Saskatchewan, Canada, towns report temperatures of thirty-five below zero today. The Minnesota green ranges report twenty-five below at noon.

SALONIKI AIR RAID CAUSES WILD PANIC

PRINCE ANDREW OF GREECE DE-SCRIBES AERIAL ATTACK AND REPLY FROM WAR SHIPS.

CONSULS IN CUSTODY

Arrest of Officials by French Soldiers Follows Bombardment by German Aircraft.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Athens, via Paris, Jan. 4. (Delayed)—Prince Andrew of Greece, brother of King Constantine, in an interview today with the correspondent of the Associated Press, described the aerial bombardment of the allies' camp at Zetnik on the outskirts of Saloniki on December 30th.

"The bombardment and the reply of the fleet anchored in the bay of Saloniki," said the prince, "was one of the most extraordinary sights imaginable. I was riding back from my morning's work with my regiment at about 10:30 when I was startled by a deafening explosion, two hundred yards away. A great cloud of black smoke arose from the firing of three more explosions at regular intervals. Then came the familiar rocket like sound of a shell passing through the air, evidently fired by one of the warships in the harbor."

"Naturally my first thought was that for some reason the fleet was bombarding Saloniki. Therefore, I rode straight from the nearest British post which happened to be a hospital."

"Why are you bombarding the city?" I asked the officers.

Saw Hostile Airships.
"Then for the first time I looked up and saw three machines fully three thousand feet high, flying in line from the northeast and turning just over the harbor toward the northwest in which direction they disappeared."

The bombs dropped with greatest precision one after another, killing and wounding a number of allied soldiers, but not touching the city.

"Meanwhile the firing of the fleet grew thunderous. It was impossible to hear yourself think. In a short time, it became evident that the fire from the fleet was more dangerous than the bombs from the aeroplanes as some of the shells aimed wild, whistled directly over the town, one narrowly missing a group of Greek cavalry returning from exercise. The 'flooded' such shells began to drop with frightful velocity, one even piercing two officers of a tram station, and burying itself in the ground. The population which was not understanding what it was all about, were greatly excited."

Towards noon a fourth aeroplane arrived, following the same course as the others, though flying lower. The black maltese crosses were plainly visible on its wings. My wife and I watched its flight from the balcony of our house.

"Riding home along King George street toward tea time, I was astounded to see French soldiers, and a dense crowd of on-lookers surrounding the German consulate. Further along the street the other consulates presented the same sight. The consuls were hustled through crowds and taken to headquarters of the French Commander, General Sarrail, cross examined and then put aboard the battleship Patrie, to the accompaniment of the stapes and comments of curious crowds."

Saloniki Still Greek.
Asked whether he would return to Saloniki, the prince replied: "Of course I shall, why shouldn't I? Despite appearances, Saloniki is still Greek."

FEW PEOPLE ATTEND HORTICULTURE MEET

State-Wide Epidemic of Influenza Results in Decreased Attendance at Convention.

Madison, Jan. 5.—Owing to state-wide epidemic of gripe, less than 100 people were in attendance of the annual convention of the Wisconsin Horticulture society which met here this afternoon.

Philip delivered the address of welcome. Frederick Crane, secretary of the association, announced that the banquet planned for Thursday evening would be called off because of the small attendance due to sickness. A large amount of fruit is on display in the assembly chamber, where the convention is meeting.

ANOTHER AMERICAN IS REPORTED LOST IN PERSIA SINKING

Rev. Homer R. Salisbury Reported to Have Been a Passenger on Steamer.—Not Among Survivors.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 5.—The American embassy here has received a report saying that the Rev. Homer R. Salisbury, an American, was a passenger on the Persian, which was sunk in the Mediterranean, but that he was not included among the survivors.

Confers With Lansing.
Washington, Jan. 5.—Secretary Lansing conferred with Secretary Lansing for an hour today over the submarine crisis. No additional facts beyond the definite knowledge that only two Americans were aboard the liner Persian, have been received by the state department overnight.

Must Secure Facts.
The administration continued today to mark time in the situation arising from the sinking of the British steamer Persian while awaiting definite information concerning attack on the vessel. Until the full facts are at hand the new move in the new crisis with Teutonic powers will not be determined upon. Information is being sought as to whether the Persian actually was torpedoed, and if so, whether the nationality of the submarine. Until these points are cleared up no move probably will be made by the government. The full facts of the situation here still was as tense as ever, officials were hopeful that a new way would be found for an amicable settlement of the issue.

CHIPPEWA FALLS BOY KILLED IN TRENCHES

Former High School Athlete Meets
Death Fighting With Canadian Regiment in France.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chippewa Falls, Jan. 5.—A wire received today from Winnipeg, Canada, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stikney, that their son, Jack Stikney, 23, was killed December 28, in France, while fighting with the Canadian regiment.

The victim was a former track high school athlete here of the class of 1913. He had been in the Canadian regiment for two years and last spring he was sent to the Canadian regiment at Edmonton. He had many narrow escapes from death ever since he landed in Europe.

He was one of the most popular young men of the city and one of the best athletes ever developed at the local high school.

Last October he participated in a field meet, among the English and Canadian soldiers, and won three medals. He was also a member of the high jump, 120-yard and 220-yard hurdles. He sent these medals to his parents, and they were exhibited in a local jewelry window a month ago.

Stikney often wrote letters home and told of fierce fighting in which he was engaged. He was killed in a trench where a German shell struck it and exploded. His parents have received his bones for burial.

BARRIER SHOPS ARE GIVEN INSPECTION

Nearly Two Hundred Shops Visited By State Inspector.—Towel Evil
Is Noted.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—One hundred seventy-eight barber shops in the state were inspected during December by M. J. Brennan, barber shop inspector. He visited sixty-one cities, towns and villages in the state. Many recommendations and changes were ordered and complied with. As a rule shops are conducted under sanitary conditions as good or better than prevail in shops of other states. They are still opportunities for improvement, however.

The most insidious and dangerous practice existing is the continued use of the same hot towel. While the practice of dipping the towel is rare, still in many shops the same towel is used on more than one customer without being disinfected. The barber shop inspector believes that in some cases the same towel is used all day. It is also found that the rule requiring that hair brushes and combs be kept clean at all times and the rule prohibiting use of the styptic pencil or lump alum to stop blood flow in cuts are also violated. However, where the water and towels are changed, the barber shop is in evidence, a sanitary shop and a prosperous owner are usually found.

At the January meeting of the board of health another barber shop inspector will be appointed from the civil service eligible list so that the whole state can be well looked after in the interest of sanitary barber shops.

MARINES AT HAITI BEAT BACK NATIVES

Port Au Prince, Haiti, Jan. 5.—A revolutionary outbreak occurred at Port Au Prince, Haiti, today. The force of American marines maintained in this city was attacked. One of the rebels was killed. The Americans suffered no losses.

Several groups of insurgents ran through the street, discharging guns. The Americans met them and they were rapidly dispersed.

OWEN'S RULING EFFECTS TWO INSURANCE COMPANIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—The total sum available for insurance expenses under the Wisconsin law is not limited to the leading for expenses shown in the premiums collected by life insurance companies during the calendar year, according to a ruling by Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary today. The ruling is based on an opinion from Attorney General Walter C. Owen construing the section of the Wisconsin insurance law in question. It is of vital importance to the Metropolitan and the Prudential life insurance companies. These two companies have maintained at the beginning of the year. The expense leading in their premium is very small. If they were limited to the expense leading in the premium, it would necessitate their increasing their premiums or retiring from Wisconsin.

REPORT ON INQUIRY INTO SHIP MEASURE

CHARGES THAT OFFICIALS WERE BACKED BY FOREIGN SHIP
FIRMS, FOUND BASE-LESS.

SLAP FOR ROOSEVELT

Majority of Senate Committee Denounce Colonel for His Failure to Substantiate or Explain
His Attack on Bryan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 5.—Charges circulated during the last session of congress, that administration officials acted in the interest of foreign business firms in urging the passage of the government ship purchase bill, were held to be baseless in majority and minority reports, filed today by the senate committee appointed to investigate them. Both reports also found the shipping interest blameless of illegal activity in opposition to the measure.

Report Denounces Roosevelt.
The majority denounced Theodore Roosevelt for failing to appear before the committee to testify concerning his published assertion that Secretary Bryan "had endeavored in the interest of certain business firms, to secure for the United States power to purchase the interned ships of one of the belligerents."

The charge, the report said, had its origin "in that ungovernable trait of the human mind which makes it prone to attribute unworthy motives to political antagonists."

"The writer," added the report, "whose imminence was naturally calculated to give weight to his utterance, finding himself without any basis, even of a hearsay character, for his slanderous attack upon the highest officer of his government, simply resorted to a palpable sophistry to escape the responsibility for the assertion."

Regards President's Purpose.
While the committee found no evidence to indicate that the president or secretaries harbored any purpose to buy interned ships, the majority held "that it was not difficult to conceive of reasons, consistent with the most exalted motive, that might induce the president to refrain from a public declaration that belligerent ships would not be bought."

"Such an action," said the report, "would be a constructive as an abandonment of our rights, which our nation has vigorously maintained, to acquire merchant ships by bona fide purchase, though a state of war exist, involving the nation under whose flag they previously sailed."

Senator Sutherland presented the minority report for himself and Senator Owen. "We do not concur," he said, "insofar as the report defends the bill itself, for insofar as it insists there would be no impropriety in the purchase of the belligerent ships, it is a bad piece of legislation, and we are certain that to have purchased the boats no seeking security in American harbors would have developed serious trouble for the United States."

The committee's investigation was authorized by a resolution offered by Senator Burton and an amendment offered by Senator William, directing the inquiry as to whether the so-called shipping trust has maintained a lobby against the bill.

With reference to criticism of Colonel Roosevelt, the minority said, "We find ourselves unable to agree with the strictures with reference to Ex-President Roosevelt."

Get Down to Business.
When congress met today members of both houses were ready to settle down to the real work of the session. Chief interest seemed to center in the question of national preparedness, although the senate proceedings were expected to be enlivened by a general republican attack on the administration. The subject of national defense came up before both senate and house naval affairs committee. In the house the farm loan bill was up for debate.

PRESIDENT WILSON ASKED TO NAME DAY FOR GENERAL JEWISH RELIEF FUNDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 5.—President Wilson was asked to set aside a day as a Jewish relief day on which contributions would be raised for suffering Jews in the war zone, in a resolution introduced today by Senator Marthe of New Jersey. The resolution said nine million Jews were in desperate conditions in Europe. At request of Chairman Stone of foreign relations committee the resolution was laid over until tomorrow.

CONSUL PRO-GERMAN, ENGLISH COMPLAIN

Julius G. Lay.

That Julius G. Lay, American consul-general at Berlin, is decidedly pro-German, is the unofficial complaint of the British. There are rumors in London to the effect that he was so pro-German in early life that he tried to enlist in the German army and was rejected on account of ill health. Mrs. Lay recently visited London and was denounced in private as a "German agent abusing English hospitality under the protection of the American diplomatic corps."

John Redmond, the leader of the Irish Nationalists, is opposing conscription by every means in his power. He has intimated that conscription may be met with civil war in Ireland, although he declares the Irish are willing to bear their share of the war's burdens.

MUST PAY PENSIONS EVEN THOUGH FUND IS NOT PROVIDED

Attorney General Rules That Counties Have No Option But Must Operate Under Mothers'
Pension Act.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—Counties must operate under the mothers' pension law even though no specific appropriation was made for carrying the law into effect, according to the opinion of Attorney General W. C. Owen to the state board of control. The board called the attention of the attorney general's office to the fact that a number of counties failed to make appropriations for this matter at their annual meeting.

"If the money needed to furnish this relief is not provided in advance the county simply goes into debt, therefore to those who furnish such relief," says the opinion. "As already remarked, if no funds are on hand the treasurer cannot pay, but that fact in no way arrests the administration of the law or prevents the issue of the proper certificates. The officers who are commanded to furnish such certificates are not obliged to ask if funds are available or if taxes have been voted by the county board. They may not refuse a certificate even if all these things are wanting. If the certificates are not paid when presented, the holder has a legal claim against the county which can be enforced."

In his opinion Mr. Owen says that the compulsory feature of the law requiring the counties to make adequate appropriations for the subject were not to frustrate or thwart the operation of the law, but rather to promote its operation and administration.

"Any other construction," says Attorney General Owen, "would render the operation of the law not only tardy, fitful, uncertain and sporadic, but would place a needless burden on the county board to defeat the operation of the law entirely, an assumption of legislative absurdity which has been made by the county board. Mr. Owen declares that counties which have failed to make proper appropriations may make them at an adjourned meeting. He says where the law occurs, it must have been an oversight or lack of knowledge of the requirements of the law."

NON-INTERVENTION POLICY ADVOCATED

Speakers at Pan-American Meeting
Urge Importance of Supporting Monroe and Drago Decisions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 5.—Chief interest in the work of the Pan-American Scientific Congress again today appeared centered in the section for the study of international law. The speakers discussed some phase of Pan-Americanism and the avowal of a policy of non-intervention was advocated as an unavoidable necessity in the creation of Pan-American unity by Dr. Luis Alfredo Otero of Colombia. He insisted that this was as imperative as that the policy calculated to prevent the colonization of any of the western countries by European governments. Unqualified support of the Monroe doctrine and what he characterized as its complement, the Drago doctrine, was given by Dr. Manuel Cavalcanti of Brazil in an address on problems of international law peculiar to America.

Dr. Enrique Gil, delegate from the law school of the National University of Buenos Aires discussed Pan-Americanism in the light of the traditional international policy of Argentina.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS SOLD TO BALL FOR HALF MILLION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5.—The sale of the St. Louis Browns to Phil Ball and other stockholders of the St. Louis Federal league club was completed last night.

The price was $525,000. This sum was paid by Phil Ball, James W. Garneau and Otto Stifel for $80 shares of stock in the ball club and the Federal league company, owner of the local American league park and grand stands.

Ball will be president of the new Browns, Stifel the general manager and second vice president respectively. L. B. Van Weist, secretary, and S. L. Swartz counsel. These five men also comprise the new board of directors of the club.

Ball and Stifel were known as the principal stockholders in the local Federal club and as the principal figures in the group buying the Browns. Garneau's name is new to local baseball followers.

COMPULSION MEASURE IS INTRODUCED

MAY DISTURB CABINET

Chance for Further Shake-Up in Ministry Is Still Believed Possible.
—Ireland Is Excluded from Compulsory Service.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 5.—Under the terms of the compulsory military service bill introduced in the house of commons today, all males between eighteen and forty-one years of age, who are bachelors or widowers without children dependent upon them, are under military service. Ireland is excluded from military service. Premier Asquith introduced the bill.

Mr. Asquith said no case had been made out for general compulsion and that the bill he was introducing could be supported by those opposed to conscription.

Cabinet Crisis Still Pends

London, Jan. 4. (delayed)—The figures of the Earl of Derby's stock taking of the United Kingdom's martial manhood show that over 2,000,000 men of military age have not yet offered their services in any form to the government. Publication of the figures finds a cabinet crisis caused by the compulsion problem by no means ended. The cabinet meeting today Thursday probably will come to a final decision and may result in other resignations.

Ireland, which was not included in the Derby plans, also is said to be excluded from the conscription measure which the premier will introduce in the house of commons tomorrow.

Slav Conscription Army Gains.
Russia's great conscript armies are making their own contribution to the Austro-Germans before Cernowitz, where according to Russian official reports the Russians have not only repulsed Austrian counter attacks north-west of that city, but themselves are steadily advancing.

The military plans of central powers in the near east are still veiled in mystery, but reports received from French sources are skeptical in regard to rumors that they are in point of resuming the offensive in Macedonia. According to these reports the central powers have only thirteen infantry divisions available for such service, and unless Bulgaria supplies the deficiency it would be sheer madness, French sources declare, to undertake a military operation which would further assist on the ground that she had fulfilled her bargain by conquering a portion of Serbia and doing her share toward opening the road to Constantinople.

Albanian Chief Declares War.
In Albania there has been much apparent activity with relatively small military results. Perhaps the most important event in Albania is the declaration of war by Essad Pasha against Austria and Germany. This irregular chief is erratic but an undoubted military genius with a large and loyal following and he is reported to be well supplied with guns and ammunition.

England has continued her colonial warfare with success in the Kameri where it is officially reported that the German base has been occupied by British forces. French troops also are known to be converging toward Jaunde from the east and southeast so that the fleeing Germans soon may be surrounded.

PHILIPP MEETING ON MONDAY EVENING IS AN IMPORTANT ONE

Gathering Monday Night Under Auspices of Methodist Brotherhood, Attracts State-Wide Attention.

Announcement that Governor Philipp would speak in Janesville Monday, January tenth, under the auspices of the Methodist Brotherhood, on state issues, has attracted state-wide interest as one of the important meetings of the month.

Chairman Eddy of the Methodist Brotherhood is most anxious to have a report on how many of the various other church brotherhoods will be present and as the invitation has been extended to all such organizations, making it a general meeting, it is expected that there will be a good-sized attendance. All members of various brotherhoods are urged to notify their pastor at once of their intention so that arrangements can be made for their accommodation.

The governor will arrive on an afternoon train and before the supper hour will be entered an informal reception at the Methodist church, where the supper will be served. Following the supper itself, the governor and members of the brotherhoods will go to the church, where the address will be given. This is open to the general public and all are cordially invited to attend, there being no charge.

As the subject will be state affairs, it is expected the governor will explain many of the plans for reduction of taxes, what has already been accomplished and correct erroneous impressions that have been given prominence in other speeches in the state recently. It is the first talk the governor will give this year and coming Monday it does on the eve of a state republican convention, will be most significant.

The governor will be the guest of Senator John M. Whitehead over the night returning to Madison on Tuesday morning. There will be many out-of-town visitors for the address, reservations having been received from Madison, Milwaukee and elsewhere. It is expected that Governor Philipp will accompany the governor on his Janesville visit.

NO EXPRESS ON AFTERNOON TRAIN

New Ruling by Northwestern Affects Merchants and Business Houses of City.

Without warning the Northwestern road has discontinued the handling of express on Chicago and North western train arriving in Janesville at four-fifths each afternoon, to the serious inconvenience of many local merchants. Meat markets, groceries, newspapers and general stores are directly affected as many late shipments came in on this train from Chicago. The new ruling not only affects Janesville, but all along the line, as no express is taken out of Chicago on the train, where hitherto there was usually a half carload at least, aside from what was picked up along the line.

OBITUARY.

John Nash.
Funeral services over the remains of the late John Nash of 24 South Terrace street, will be held on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Henry Rogers.
The burial of the funeral of the late Henry Rogers yesterday were: F. H. Jackman, Frank Peterson, G. H. Drummond, L. M. Nelson, J. T. Lloyd and E. T. Fish. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Charles W. Stark.
Through an error in last night's paper it was stated that the funeral of the late Charles W. Stark would be held this afternoon. It will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Congregational church at 2 o'clock. The remains were laid to rest in the Skoviere cemetery.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Abigail M. Doty was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Fifield, at 201 Jackson street. The Rev. John McKinnon, rector of Christ Episcopal church, read the services. The pallbearers were: Charles L. Fifield, Arthur Wood, Lawrence Doty, Edgar Kohler and Robert Matthews. A large number of friends of Mrs. Doty and of her family attended the services and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

LOCAL BUILDING CONTRACTORS WILL ATTEND STATE MEETING

Janesville building contractors and members of the Wisconsin Master Builders' association, are planning to attend the annual meeting of this organization on Jan. 14 and 15 at Madison. Delegates and representatives from a total of twenty-three cities throughout Wisconsin will attend. To date William Ford, Will Hayes, Joseph Denning, and E. E. and J. Van Pool have expressed intentions of attending the meetings.

Skating Friday night at the rink.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness shown and floral offerings sent at the time of her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Quade and family.

FARM MORTGAGE BONDS.

The opportunity of a town lies in the country. No country can become richer than its land. For this reason the best securities are those that are based on the soil.

Some investors object to farm mortgages because often they cannot be held in the amount to suit their immediate investment. They also object to going to the trouble of making a personal selection of a farm loan.

Bonds based on farm mortgages overcome the objections, and when these bonds are issued by a banking institution which is under state control, a more conservative investment would be hard to find.

It is these bonds that are being offered on another page by the Farmer's Savings & Trust Co. of Marinette, Wis.

In addition to the interest that an investor secured when he purchases securities based on farm land, he has the further advantage of knowing that his money is being used in the country's most important business, and that the soil comes out of the ground and other human needs are subordinate to these.

TAX NOTICE.
I will be at the Rock County National Bank each Saturday during January for the collection of taxes for the town of Janesville.
H. C. HEMINGWAY, Treas.

SOLOMON SPOON DIES IN ADVANCED YEARS

Long Resident of Janesville.—Gold Lured Him to California in Early Fifties.

After an illness of twenty months Solomon Spoon of 479 North Washington street passed peacefully away on January 4th, in his 87th year.

Mr. Spoon was born near Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 11, 1829, and spent his boyhood days in Niagara county, New York.

With his parents he came to Wisconsin in 1846, settling on a farm west of Janesville. Prompted by the spirit of the times he went to California in 1852. The trip was made overland with four yoke of oxen and occupying four months' time. He remained west five years, returning in 1857 by boat, via the Isthmus of Panama.

In 1859 Mr. Spoon married Helen Augusta Royer, who survives him. Four children were born to them. They are Mrs. P. T. Nelson of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. B. F. Martin of Marshalltown, Iowa; Frank A. and Miss Grace of this city.

He resided on a farm three miles west of Janesville until 1890, when he moved with his family to this city, where he has since made his home.

Two brothers and one sister survive him, Abram J. Spoon of Elkington, Wis.; Mrs. Elizabeth Strain of Bloomington, Wis., and J. F. Spoon of Janesville.

Services will be held from the family residence Thursday, Jan. 6, at 2:30 p. m.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY THAT IS A HISTORY

Rasmus B. Anderson Has Written Book that Gives New Insight in Literature.

In his autobiography recently published Rasmus B. Anderson of Madison has given the world of letters an epitomized history of the Norse-American that marks it as a contribution worthy of special notice. It not only ranks as a literary production but as a history of the sturdy Norse people who have settled this northwestern country. The story told in the life work of the writer to make the American people thoroughly acquainted with the beautiful literature of the Northland from which so many of our ancestors came originally. His labors as professor at the state university, his life in foreign countries as representative of the United States, his meetings of men of note of past decades, Bjornson, Ibsen, Ole Bull, Sven Hedin, Grief, Kristofer Janson, Knut Hamsun, Paul du Chailu, Johan Sverdrup and others give us pen pictures of these men in a most pleasing manner.

That is of special interest at this time is his description of Senator La Follette and his campaigns, which is most graphic and explains further things hitherto hidden under a bushel until given light by Mr. Anderson. The volume is one that should be on all library shelves and in the home of those who wish to keep in touch with the history of the great northwest.

Famous Artificial Limbs.

Famous in history is the iron hand of Goutz von Berlichingen, a knight of medieval Nuremberg; and there was another hobleman of the same epoch who had an iron foot weighing ten pounds, with which, being an invincible person, he could kick so hard that his servants stole the foot and threw it into the Rhine.

Baseball 4,000 Years Old.

It is now believed that Egypt is the birthplace of the original ball game. How it was played history does not record. Recent excavations made near Cairo have brought to light a number of small balls, some of leather and others of wood, dating back to at least 2000 B. C. These are the oldest balls of this sort known.

What it Will do for you

There are many people who, while they are not sick enough to be in bed, are not at all well. The system is below normal, the blood impure, the circulation sluggish, the tissues poorly nourished. In fact, they are in the very best condition to contract bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, influenza, neuritis, lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia etc.

Is the above condition your condition? Take advantage of the opportunity to set up your system. Put it in a condition so it can defy the germs of the above diseases. The MILK and REST Treatment will do it for you. It means less suffering, less expense, better health.

LIMA

Lima, Jan. 5.—The death of Norman M. Gleason, aged 71 years, occurred last Sunday, January 2, at his home in Whitewater. The immediate cause of his death was apoplexy. He was born in the town of Lima on April 28, 1844, which was his home until about two years ago, when failing health compelled him to give up his farm and business life, and he moved to Whitewater. Prior to leaving Lima Mr. Gleason had been a member of the town board since 1877, for several years was chairman. For 18 years he was supervisor for the Lima Mutual Fire Insurance company.

Mr. Gleason married Mrs. Elizabeth Finch, children born to them, two are living, Charles M. and Ethel L. Gleason. Charles M. is a practicing physician in Manitowish, Wis. Ethel is the wife of F. P. Downing and lives in Madison.

The funeral service was held from the Congregational church, of which both Mr. and Mrs. Gleason are members, on Tuesday afternoon, and the remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Hillside.

The annual meeting of the Lima and Johnson Insurance company was held in Johnsonville, Wis., on the afternoon of January 4th. The secretary's report showed an outstanding insurance of $905,942; amount written in 1915, $24,917; losses in 1915, $246. The 1915 board of directors was re-elected.

Ray Peacock went to Baraboo last week and on Saturday was married to Miss Lee of that place.

PIDGIN ISLAND

By HAROLD MACGRATH

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"He doesn't answer."
"Come along."
The clerk rapped loudly on the door and waited for a moment.
Then he called Cranford by name. Hearing nothing, he inserted the key and opened the door. He stood transfixed on the threshold, and Lester stared over his shoulder, eyes open.
The bureau drawers, the drawers of the washstand, the suit cases emptied and hung carelessly aside. The mattress lay twisted over the footboard of the bed, the pillows crushed, clothes littered the chairs and the floor.
Neither a north nor a southwester combined could not have created such confusion.
"He isn't here. Something's happened. Mr. Cranford was never in any such hurry as this. Who occupies the other rooms?"
"All the other rooms in this corridor are empty. The only other rooms occupied are in the north wing, over the kitchen. He went out to the farm last night."
"The farm?"
"Perhaps he stayed there all night."
"But who's been in this room hunting for something?"
"Hanged if I know. I can't figure it out. There must have been a racket to do all this damage. And yet nobody heard anything last night or they'd have reported it. Better run out to the farm. Maybe it's a second story robbery. If he didn't stay out at the farm I'll notify the sheriff."

"Mr. Cranford is one of the best guests this hotel ever had. He's been here off and on for twenty years. I'll hunt up Uncle Billy. Maybe he can tell something."
"Do it," said the clerk, locking the door. "I'll tell the maid not to touch anything. And if Mr. Cranford isn't out there I'll call in the sheriff."
"He won't do any good. Get a detective from Watertown. I'm going down to Bill's."
At the house he was informed that he would find the old guide in the boat-house.
There Lester found him seated on the soap box, gravely inspecting a felt hat which he held in his hands.
"Billy, where's Mr. Cranford?"
"I dunno, Lester. I found this hat o' his'n in the middle o' the road 'n' I started out t' the farm this mornin'. What's his hat doin' in the road? Huh?"
"Did you go to the farm?"
"Yes; but he wasn't there. He left there 'bout 9 o'clock. Why?"
"Wasn't in his room last night, Billy; but some one else was. Everything turned upside down."
"Y' don't say so! What'll we do?"
"I don't know what to do. There's something wrong about this. Everything upside down in his room."

CHAPTER XVI.

In the Enemy's Hands.
UNCLE BILLY got up suddenly and shook his hat in the air.
"I know! Sumpin' t' do 't' that dinged hundred dollars 'n' my name ain't Bill. I'll go out 'n' ask Miss Wynne."
"I wouldn't. If she's sick abed it might upset her. Billy, what did Miss Wynne expect to find out there at Pidgin?"
"Honestly, Lester, I don't know," drawing his words to make them emphatic. "I'll tell y' this much—she said sumpin' 'bout preventin' a crime 'n' a rajah's ransom. What's a rajah, huh?"
"It's a Hindu king, I guess."
"I remember; one o' them nigger chaps that wears silk pants 'n' a bedspread for a hat. But I don't see what a rajah's got t' do 't' Mr. Cranford's disappearance. Y' leave it t' me, Lester. I'll go back t' where I found that hat 'n' nose 'bout."

"The hotel people are going to send to Watertown for a detective."
"Let 'em. I got jes' 's good nose 'n' eyes 's any detective." He rammed the hat into his pocket and strode out of the boat-house, followed by Lester, who was anxious and solemn.
"Don't y' say nuthin' t' the hotel folks 'r the boys. Wait a day 'r two. Mebbe Cranford was runnin' after some one 'n' lost his hat."
"Wouldn't be running all this while."
"Well, y' leave it t' me. I won't thinkin' much when I picked up that hat. I'm goin' out there t' see what did happen."

It is doubtful if Uncle Billy had ever read a novel, much less a detective story, but he knew all the earth signs. He was a guide to the manner born.
When he picked up Cranford's hat his mind was occupied with the girl's grim earnestness out there at Pidgin, the hundred dollars. He had not, therefore, observed things. But now he had reason. He found the spot and studied the ground thoroughly. During the storm it had rained plentifully. The ruts in the road were still damp and impressionable, and out of these ruts Uncle Billy gathered his reading.
An automobile had stopped and backed and gone on again. Good many footprints, close together, and one long slip which trailed over the lip of the road.
This has been made by Cranford, for he recognized the rubber spikes of the tennis shoes. There had been a scrimmage. But who would want to fight Mr. Cranford? Was the question which was troubling Uncle Billy. Here was a new rubber heel. And all these footprints vanished abruptly.
Three persons—and they had gone away in the automobile. Where? And why?
Slaking his head, he plodded back to the boat-house. Mr. Cranford had been abducted. Most amazing!
At 6 o'clock that evening he had come to the conclusion that as a detective he was a blooming fizzle.
He had, during the afternoon, detected new rubber heels on the shoes of seven men—a guest at the hotel, the local druggist, a man who had a summer cottage in the village, the smith, the hotel proprietor and the bartender.
The guest, the man who had the cottage and the smith all had automobiles with the same make of tires. Uncle Billy did not sleep well that night.
Neither did the object of all these earnest endeavors. Cranford's bedroom was a circular affair, windowless, whose sole entrance and exit was a trapdoor some five feet beyond the reach of his fingers.
Briefly, an empty cistern in a deserted farmhouse four or five miles inland. Whenever he wanted a drink of water he had to grope for the pail.
For nearly forty-eight hours, two days, he had been incarcerated in this unusual prison. From the fight in the road down to this very hour not a question had been asked. He had not even seen his captors since night before last.
The candle they had left him had gone out in a sputter of wax.
Three matches left. He fumbled them undecidedly.
Surely they would return to renew his meager larder. At length he could resist the temptation no longer. He struck a match and found that it was almost 9. Ere the glow of the match died he heard the purr of an automobile. It paused.
His heart beat quickly. He tried to count the minutes between the death of that noise and the birth of another. Came the muffled closing of a door. They had come at last.
This affair was Diana's, and never should these rascals learn anything from him. He knew nothing; he would not have to lie or dodge or evade. He would tell them frankly that they were wasting their time and let it go at that.
The trapdoor opened, and a ladder came slithering down.
"Come up," said a voice.
Cranford climbed out of the cistern and stood blinking in the light of a detached automobile lamp.
For awhile he remained at the edge of the cistern waiting till his dark smothered eyes resumed their functions. Then he saw Hanchett and Denison and, in the gloom of a corner, a third man.
Without thinking of the tinge of melodrama in the act, Cranford filled his pipe and began smoking. He had not dared to smoke in the cistern; he would have suffocated. Ah, but the smoke tasted good!
"Well, gentlemen?" he said quietly.
Hanchett smiled.
Dusty, cobwebbed and disheveled, Cranford presented really a comic picture, and the sang froid with which he lighted his pipe made him irresistible to Hanchett's every ready appreciation of the ludicrous.
"Cranford, we shan't waste time beating about the bush. It doesn't matter how or when you learned. We want what you took from Pidgin Island."
"What was it I took?"
Hanchett smiled again. "You can't pass your hand up like that. Cranford, we do not wish you injury or inconvenience. Clever idea of yours to have that telegram delayed. We found it out, however."
Cranford held his surprise in check. What a woman! Not a detail had escaped her. "I dare say by this time you've been through my belongings at the hotel."
"We have," frankly. "And found nothing; else your guide would be releasing you."

"Do you want the truth?"
"As quickly as you can give it."
The prisoner smoked for a minute or two. "Well, then, you've had all your trouble for nothing. I haven't the slightest idea what is going on. What it is you're trying to smuggle across. To this is added the fact that I should not tell you if I did. I realize, in the parlance of your particular world, you are out to do me for the crutches."
Smead rose and limped into the light. "Cranford, give them up. Otherwise, on my word, you'll stay here till the crack of doom."
Cranford puffed and let the smoke drift up into his nostrils.
"We haven't got all night."
"You've got just as much time as I have."
"Give him his bread and fill up the pail," said Smead. "Another twenty-four hours will bring him to reason."
"Would you object if I washed my face and hands first? Water is necessary inside, of course, but I'd feel a trifle more comfortable with a few handfuls on the outside."
"Get your pail," said Hanchett.
Cranford went down the ladder and fetched the pail.
"Denison, I appoint you Gany-medes," declared Hanchett loftily.
"What's the matter with Fagin?"
"Well, then, Fagin, off with you to the well."
Fagin returned presently and set down the pail before Cranford.
"That's right; coddle him," sneered Smead.
"I understand your point of view," replied Cranford. "You do not understand what the word of a gentleman means. I know absolutely nothing. Since I do not believe you intend to put me out of the way, you three shall answer for this. I do not forget."
"Neither do we, Mr. Cranford," said Hanchett, stepping close. "We can hours in the dark," Smead warned.

"So long as you're not bent on starving me, a day or two more in this hole will not matter." Cranford began the descent. He heard Hanchett laugh.
"Cranford, I'm beginning to like you. I'll make it two candles and a box of matches."
"Fool!" growled Smead.
"You be still!" retorted the son.
"He's right. You don't appreciate him. I like a cool hand, no matter which side he is on. A brave man isn't so common these days that we can afford to ignore him when we meet him. He'll have his candles and matches, and tomorrow night he may be a little tamer and tell us who has them."
"What do you mean by that?" demanded Smead.
"Why, he really hasn't got them, but knows who has. You're as dense as a sand bank. Found them, but gave them to some one else to keep. Clever!"
On the farmhouse veranda, sometimes called the front porch, the stoop and often the piazza Diana sat in her steamer chair. Her arm was still in a sling and over her injured foot a furry carriage boot.
Whenever she saw the figure of a man in the distance she would lean forward from her pillows, only to recline again, embittered that she could not resist the impulse. Why should she wait and watch? He was busy—perhaps he had gone away. Had it not been her wish that he should go and no more waste his time in thought of her? The gender feminine—to wish one thing and desire another.
"It's no use, Frances. I am not listening to a word you're reading."
"I have not been reading for the past ten minutes, Diana," replied she of the tragic eyes and the intaglio face. "You are watching for some one. You look always toward the village." The fingers of Diana's free hand drummed tattoo.
"You have been so good to me," said Frances. "I have been very unhappy. One by one I let my rings go. I hated to part with a single one of them, but needs said must. They were so beautiful. But I had starved else."
"Foolish Frances! Well, yes; we are both of us unhappy, only you accept your fate resignedly and I rebel against mine, always and eternally. I rebel against the accident which makes me what I am, which stands as a wall between me and what might be. I rebel against the lack of money, my love of the clothes and comforts. Extravagance is the heritage of all women, but I am one of those who war against the desire. I have saved half of all I have earned."

BACKACHE, PAIN IN SIDE, RHEUMATISM.

Dear Mr. Editor:
For a long time I suffered from backache, pain in left side, frequent urination (bothering me at all times during the day and night), and the uric acid in my blood caused me to suffer from rheumatism along with a constant tired, worn-out feeling. I heard of the new discovery of Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., called "Anuric" and obtained these tablets at once began their use. After giving "Anuric" a good trial I believe it to be the best kidney remedy on the market today. I have tried other kidney medicines but these "Anuric Tablets" of Dr. Pierce's are the only ones, in my opinion, that will cure kidney and bladder troubles.
(Signed) Henry A. Love.

Notes.—Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that "Anuric" is 37 times more active than Lithia in expelling poisons from body. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear. Send 10c for large trial package or go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric" manufactured by Dr. Pierce. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Dr. Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you without fee or any charge whatever. Advertisement.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often find that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alternative. Read this—
"Gentlemen—Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 14, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (bacilli were found). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Tampa City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 105 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1906, I began taking Eckman's Alternative. I was in bed for three weeks. Now I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator."

Married Life on $80 a Month

By Mrs. E. A. LEONARD

The Tyler trial had attracted a great deal of attention and the court room was full when the Fairport contingent entered. They were seated up in front. Molly was evidently looking for someone; she kept turning her head finally she spotted down to watch John turn and saw young Crane, sitting there, looking at her. Just then Julia Osgood was called to the witness stand. All eyes turned to Crane. He looked at her without moving his eyes all the while she was giving her evidence. When she finished, she looked at him. "So you have decided to do it," he replied. "I am afraid you will make matters worse."

"How can it be worse?" she asked. "That was the one thing I had decided not to go on with the scheme. Things cannot be made any worse, and there is a chance of making them better. They never see each other as it is. They will always be perfect strangers or things are going now."

During the next intermission of court John went over to speak to Crane. After they had chatted a few minutes together, John said: "My wife wants to know if you can spare her a little time?" "I should be delighted," murmured Crane, wondering what on earth she could want.

When John saw both John and Molly headed for Mr. Crane at the noon recess she started off alone for the hotel. She was glad they went over to speak to him; it was the natural thing to do.

Molly felt her heart pounding and wondered if he could not hear it. With a great effort she finally said: "Mr. Crane, I wish we could have a little talk. I have something to tell you."

John came to her aid. "I'll walk up and down here a few turns while you have your confab." And he walked away.

"As you know," began Molly, "I am quite intimate with Miss Osgood. She has told me quite a little about your misunderstanding."

"I do not understand," said Crane coldly.

"Look here, I cannot stand this; I have an idea that if you could know what she really thinks it would make a difference. It makes me miserable to know that she is unhappy. I thought perhaps—"

"Does Miss Osgood know you are telling me this?" he asked, looking at her keenly.

"Oh, no! And she must never know that we have mentioned her name."

"Is this quite fair, telling things she would not want told?" he continued.

"I would not do it only I feel sure that you love her more than I do and will not misunderstand. She told me that she broke the engagement because she felt that you would be making too great a sacrifice if you married her that you would regret a marriage that cost you so much."

"What is this?" asked Crane excitedly. "Do you mean that she cares for me?"

"Yes, I wanted you to know. She thinks she has done the best thing for your happiness and can bear all the pain herself. As if your happiness were separated when you love each other."

"I must go now. My husband is waiting for me," Molly turned and left him reeling to the spot.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl and remember the stories you teach Sunday school and I know very little about the Bible. Every week I have to prepare the lesson. I am to teach and almost always the story is new to me. I really know the Bible said that she didn't see how I had the nerve to teach since I lack so in general knowledge. I went to Sunday school myself when I was a little girl and I learned absolutely nothing. My teachers all told me to teach myself, but they did not keep me interested. I told the girl who criticized me that a teacher's interest in her children counts for more in their religious growth than volumes of study. I am a student.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl, seventeen years old. (1) When a reception is given in your honor, what is the best time to thank the hostess if you have been introduced to each guest individually? (2) Is it a good thing to thank her publicly during the reception or after the guests are gone? (3) I have a funny habit of looking across when I am serious, especially when studying. Can I overcome this habit? I don't know when I am looking cross. YOUNG TRULY.

(1) Before the reception thank your hostess for giving it for you and after the reception tell her how much you enjoyed it.

(2) Do not thank her publicly.

(3) You can overcome the habit if you make up your mind to study with pleasant expression and subconscious control of your mind on it while you are studying.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am going to a wedding and will have to get a dress. I want to have my next dress white, and when I am married, she said that I would be afraid I would be afraid of the bride. Do you think it would be all right to have white, even if she doesn't want me to? I am a brunette.

(2) I am troubled with dandruff. Will you suggest something that will cure it?

(3) Wear a yellow dress. White probably would make you look too much like a bride.

(4) To cure dandruff, mix a quart of soft water and add a few drops of sulphur and shake the mixture. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the quart, use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of old trouble. This remedy will darken light hair.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

AS IT SEEMS TO BE.

A good many letters from readers of this column ask us to base an opinion or advice a suitable diet or tell what should be done for some such trouble as this:

I am a young girl of twenty-two, and for the last few years I have been feeling run down and nervous. I work in an office where the ventilation is not just what it should be. I was told my trouble is nervousness, and advised to take various medicines. But after several experiments I still feel as badly as ever. I have a little natural trouble in my throat, and sometimes a slight cough, but my lungs seem to be all right; there is no pain anywhere. I have lost fourteen pounds in weight. My back aches some, but my kidneys seem to be normal. Won't you please suggest something to help me?

The young lady like all others who write in their letters under a misapprehension. Her letter details some vague symptoms which might mean any of a dozen or more things. It tells absolutely nothing upon which an opinion or any advice worth writing could be based.

Note that her lungs seem to be normal, and her kidneys seem normal too. Why do they seem so? Perhaps because there is no pain in the chest, and because the kidney functions do not disturb the patient. Well, tuberculosis is painless in its stages, kidney disease causes no disturbances which the victim would attribute to the kidneys—it causes general ill health or digestive disturbances, or headaches or anemia or loss of weight—Bright's disease, we mean.

Yet because these organs "seem" normal the young lady eliminates them from the case and expects us to do so, too. Imagine how much good—or rather harm—a doctor would do by undertaking to advise anyone on such insufficient knowledge of the condition present!

We are aware that we have been able to render some little help to readers through correspondence with them and with their physicians and dentists. We are glad that this is so. We eagerly welcome the opportunity to do good where we feel that it is good.

But we wish to protest once more against such letters as that quoted. It is a dangerous thing to trust to a multiplication made by long-distance communication and still more risky to follow treatment based upon such a diagnosis. If you have any questions upon which you desire information that we can give, put them to us. But do not ask us to tell you what is the matter with you. Do not expect us to do by mail what no doctor can do—even in his private office—diagnose the trouble without examining the patient.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Kidney Trouble Never Causes Backache.

Is backache, dull, deep-seated, always present, a symptom of kidney trouble?

Answer—In all our hospital and private practice we cannot recall ever finding met with backache due to kidney trouble.

Her Joints Grate.

Can you explain what causes my knees to grate when I go up and down stairs or turn in bed? My hand feels the grating too.

Answer—Either loose body in the knee or overgrowth of the synovial membrane, lining the joint. If it doesn't cause pain or disability, ignore it.

Household Hints

CANDIES.

Candy for children to make: Maple Caramels—One pound sugar, one-half pound maple sugar, one-half pint cream or rich milk. Heat slowly and when it begins to boil add two tablespoons butter and one-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar. Cook slowly until it snaps in cold water. Pour on buttered tins and mark in squares while warm.

Ice Cream Taffy—Two cups sugar, one tablespoon butter, one cup water to dissolve sugar. Boil eight minutes. Add one-half teaspoon cream of tartar, boil seven minutes longer. Take from fire, add one teaspoon vanilla and pour on buttered tins. When cool enough to handle, pull until white.

Chocolate Caramels—One cup each of grated chocolate, milk, sugar and molasses; piece of butter size of egg. Boil until it drops hard in cold water. Pour on buttered dish, mark in squares while warm.

Butterscotch—Five tablespoon molasses, four tablespoon sugar, four tablespoons water, two tablespoons butter. Let boil until when dropped in cold water it will be brittle. Put in a pinch of soda before taking off fire. Pour on buttered tins. When cool enough, mark into squares.

BALL OF FLAXEN BLUE.

If you have the little blue flax flowers fasten a string through the top of a large sponge so it can be hung up. Dip the sponge in water that is milk warm and squeeze out enough so it can be handled. Put as many flax seeds in the holes of the sponge as you can make it hold. Put in a dark place for a couple of days, each morning holding the sponge so the bottom just touches water in a pail, letting it draw up all the water it will.

After two days in darkness hang in a very light place, each morning holding with water from a beaker. Soon the sponge will be filled with the delightful blue blossoms.

TO RESTORE SCORCHED PAPERS.

A paper which has been scorched by fire may be rendered readable by pouring collodion over them. In a few minutes this dries and a tough transparent coating is produced, through which the writing can be read. Blank notes and other papers thus charred may be treated this way with equally good results.

PREPARING THE OVEN.

To get your oven in good shape for baking open all the holes in the burners with a hot pin, put the blowers in position, and adjust the gas valves in the under oven, then adjust the suction nozzle and take up all the loose soot and dirt clear all gas burners in the same manner.

MEXICAN DISHES.

The following Spanish or Mexican dishes are in direction because of the warming qualities of chili or cayenne and with the exception of the relish are excellent substitutes for meat.

Baked Bean Chili—Four cups cold boiled beans, add a dash of cayenne and one-quarter cup flour and mix thoroughly. Put in baking dish. Pour over this the liquid from one pint of tomatoes, put dots of butter on top and bake.

Spanish Rice—One pint tomatoes, one-half cup rice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne, one-quarter cup butter, six medium size onions. Cook together till rice is soft.

Spanish Salad or Relish—Cut up equal parts of celery and onions, mix thoroughly, cover with mayonnaise, to which a little chili has been added, and garnish with slices of tomato.

Tomato Chili—One pint tomatoes, six small size onions, one teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, tablespoon butter. Thicken with flour or a handful of macaroni.

Red Bean Chili—One can red kidney beans, half a dozen onions, a little cayenne and one-quarter cup butter.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES.

For Croupy Children—Give one teaspoon goose grease, melted. For a cold or the chest add a few drops of turpentine and grease well. For pneumonia fry onions in the grease, add flaxseed and keep putting on hot poultices till better.

THE INEXCUSABLE THING.

Some things cannot be excused. And one of them, to my mind, is the wearing of soiled white gloves. I met a woman the other day, whom I had known since she was a child in school. She was stepping out of her little closed car and bidding the hired chauffeur wait while she went into the bank, sufficient evidence that she was reasonably prosperous. She was well-dressed, too, in every detail but one, as she paused to greet me I noticed she had on very much-soiled white gloves. She didn't have to hang out.

A Strain.

It seemed to me that she was without a shred of excuse for that mark of ill-breeding. She evidently had money enough to keep a pair of gloves on hand; she was in a machine, and therefore had not the excuse of having been obliged to hold a soiled rubber strap.

Perhaps you will ask with me, what this case was without extenuating circumstances, but will note that in other cases there might be some. I believe it is the case of a woman who has left her home with clean white gloves, but returns at night with the soil of a day's wear upon them. Yes, that is much less culpable than to start out with soiled gloves, but why wear white gloves in cases like that at all? Aren't dark suede or dogskin gloves much better than sur-to-soiled white ones?

An Explanation, Not A Excuse.

I believe it was Bismarck who, having pushed himself out of turn and without the proper introduction, into the presence of a church dignitary, haughtily explained the rudeness by saying, "I am Bismarck." That, said the dignitary, "explains but does not excuse your conduct."

That's the way I feel about soiled white gloves, that in minor cases cases out of a hundred, though they may be explained, they cannot be excused.

A torn veil is another unnecessary offence against good dressing. Perhaps one cannot always afford a new veil, but one can always omit the veil altogether. Beauty or plainness undimmed by a torn veil is more adorned than by a torn veil, of course, there is the possible excuse in this case that the veil has been torn during the day.

Better Good Seracs Than Giddy Silks.

Stoddy silks and velvets also seem inexcusable to me. I would far rather appear in a plain, well-

Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Some folks think that only "celebrated mamies" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K.C. Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dampings

One fowl cut in joints, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, black pepper, 2 cups flour, 3 level teaspoons K.C. Baking Powder, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 cup shortening, milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a baking dish. Mix the 1/2 cup flour and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickening. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old fowls. You or lamb prepared in this manner is more appetizing than when served as a stew. The K.C. Cook's Book, a copy of which may be secured free by sending the colored certificate packed in the 25-cent can of K.C. Baking Powder to the Janesville Mfg. Co., Chicago.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—After canvassing the United States for the right person to organize its woman's department, the Wisconsin industrial commission has engaged for four months Miss Mary C. Wiggin of Boston, who began work today. In connection with the service to be performed by Miss Wiggin, this statement was given out by Chairman J. D. Beck of the commission:

"The industrial commission finds employers ever ready to do the best thing for their employees. Many of them feel that a working day of eight hours for women and children is a long enough period. Some who feel that way also feel that everybody should be educated to live up to the same rules. The commission has for some time felt that what employees want is correct information on the subject of hours of labor, the effect on the health of women and children. While there is a great deal of printed matter on this subject, it comes largely from theorists and others who have never been connected with the problem in a practical way. The industrial commission has looked all over the country for a woman qualified to come to Wisconsin to work out these problems for the commission in a practical way and to organize a women's department upon this basis. It found one woman—Mary C. Wiggin of Boston—who has spent years in the service of a private organization gathering just such information as merchants and other employers of women need in order to establish good sanitary conditions, and an equitable number of hours of labor for women and children in places of employment. The commission feels that she is the best qualified to undertake the work from this point of view of any person it has run across in the entire country. She will spend four months in this organization and foundation work, which ought to put Wisconsin in the way of rendering real service to the employees of women and children and to employers themselves."

Miss Wiggin is not related to Kate Douglas Wiggin nor to Mrs. Wiggin of the celebrated cabbage patch.

INCREASED CIRCULATION IN WISCONSIN LIBRARIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—The circulation that people are reading is not maintained from the state of Wisconsin. The circulation of ten of the largest libraries of the state grew from 1,200 in 1907 to 2,275,563 in 1915, an increase of 75 per cent. The increase in these cities have not been proportionately within the state, according to M. S. Dedmon, so the increase can only be attributed to advance in the habits of reading at Suncoast. Increased circulation from 1907 to 1915: La Crosse, 65,021 to 102,878; Oshkosh from 6,000 to 150,748.

COUNTRY STYLE SAUSAGE Old Home Farm Sausage

Lots of sausage passes under the guise of "Farm Sausage" that is not made on the farm. This is not so of Old Home Farm Sausage, which is made at Richland Center, Wisconsin. Here our sausage is made up from Government inspected young pork, seasoned with the best quality spices and is ground under modern methods, but with a skill that makes this sausage exactly the same as that produced on the farm years ago. Try an order of Old Home Farm Sausage and serve for breakfast or dinner the most appetizing sausage that ever graced your table.

Put up in two forms, Bulk and Link; sold only in dust-proof, sanitary, original one-pound cartons bearing our label.
